

Canada

- The S&P/TSX Composite decreased 0.54% on the week led by a decrease of 6.04% in the Health Care sector.
- Canadian wholesale and manufacturing sales both climbed higher in March after pulling back in February. Statistics Canada indicated that manufacturing sales hit their highest level since June 2019, after they climbed 3.5% to $57.8 billion in March. Petroleum and coal products industry sales gained 6.2%, while food manufacturing sales increased 2.7% to a record high in March.

United States

- The S&P/500 Composite decreased 1.39% on the week.
- US retail sales stalled in April following a sharp advance in March when pandemic-relief checks provided millions of Americans with increased spending power. Eight of 13 retail categories registered declines in April sales, with the largest percentage decrease at clothing stores. Purchases at restaurants and auto dealers increased. The value of overall retail purchases was essentially unchanged following a gain in March that, according to the Commerce Department, was the second-largest in records dated back to 1992.
